A walk to treasure . . .

EXPLORERS were able to discover the dirty deeds of pirates and buccaneers at a Treasure Island story walk.

The walk, organised as part of Bristol Walking Festival, took in the hidden caves and spy holes of the city – and the odd parrot.

Bristol is at the heart of Robert Louis Stevenson's Treasure Island – it's where Squire Trelawney found and fitted out the good ship Hispaniola, where Long John Silver ran a pub called The Spyglass, and where young Jim Hawkins stepped off the coach from Devon to set sail on the biggest adventure of his life – the search for Captain Flint's treasure.

The walk was held in association with the Long John Silver Street, creators of Bristol's Treasure Island Trail.
